

CARL TURNER ARCHITECTS

Stealth Barn, Norfolk
Cost £30,000

Sitting in the exposed expanse of the Cambridgeshire fens, Stealth Barn is a sharp black mass, a shadow of the adjacent Ochre Barn – a large threshing barn converted by Carl Turner Architects into a home and studio. Placed perpendicular to the existing barn, this addition provides a self-contained unit that could act as a guest house, studio or meeting place, depending on the time of year and workloads. The toughness of the exterior is inverted internally by the inclusion of a warmer engineered timber board that wraps around the space to form angles reminiscent of the adjacent barns divided with straw bales. The arrangement of the main spaces into simple pockets is key to the barn's multifunctional use.

CREDITS
CLIENT Private
STRUCTURAL ENGINEER
Built Engineer
FLOOR AREA
68m<sup>2</sup>
PROCUREMENT
Self-build

LEGEND
1. Bathroom
2. Kitchen
3. Main entrance

Ground floor plan

